1960 in Nassawadox, his father was a waterman from Hog Island who married his mother when she was 15. Danny grew up really poor in a two-room up, two-room down old watermen's house on the creek in Willis Wharf. With no running water, they had a only a pump and an outhouse. Danny did his first professional show on the Eastern Shore on the grounds of the Hotel Wachapreague in 1976 when he was 16 years old. He never went to art school and was a member of the ESAL. Today he has collections all over the world. President Obama purchased a painting and it hung in the White House. The Smithsonian and the Guggenheim have purchased Danny's work. We are honored to have him as judge!

Fieldtrip to New Ravenna, Exmore: This fieldtrip, which was organized by Marianne Francavilla, was just extraordinary. The mosaics, produced from glass and stone, were just amazing and inspiring. Thank you Marianne for organizing all the Paint-outs, and this gem was over the top!
